THE NEW YEAR CHIMES.

"Of earthly sound," a modern writer says, "the most solemn is the hime that rings the old year out." It is like an awful leave-taking of the dead past, and it is not to be wondered at that primitive faith conse-crated bells with prayer. Philadelphia possesses the most historic bell in America, the Liberty Bell, which since that auspicious day when it proclaimed independence throughout the land has been dearly cherished by of wheat and barley, with one of corn For over a century the oldest chime

> Our Regular Last FRIDAY IN THE MONTH BARGAIN SALE.

EXTRAORDINARY.

The success of the selling and the drawing of customers to our November last—Friday—in—the—month sale has made it possible, we think, to do in three days what used to take a month, and some times wasn't well done then, namely, to close out all surplus stock. We find from our stock sheet that we have five thoussand dollars worth too much stock. We want the money rather than the goods, we are willing to not only sacrifice profits on all of this but also a part of the cost on much of it, believing that by such efforts now we not only can do what us d to be a drag but can make our loss less because of reinvestment earlier. We believe that the Dry Goods needs of this county are not near all supplied. We are not going to take chances on letting our share of it come to us in the regular way, but we are going to place such prices on about half our stock (see a tew below) that will make it profitable to buyers to buy from us now. The people who have visited us on the strength of the special sales day advertisements know that each sales day was larger than the one preceding it. This thee day sale will have more cut prices, and deeply cut too, than all its piedecessors combined. We believe that our store will be crowded on these three days because the people know that we do what we advertise. We will show that we can mike it pay to come a distance as we may want to hold another such sale

The Kitchen Schedule. Housekeepers troubled with forgetful servants, can reduce their cares considerably by making out a schedule of the work to be done each day of the week and placing it in the kitchen where i can be seen by the maid who presides The duties of the week if apportioned to certain days, will make work easier to mistress and maid, and if these days and duties are put down in black and white in view of the kitchen goddess, they will impress themselves more readilv upon her mind and leave no excuse for the forgettings which servant girls are so addicted to. A constant bugbear of the kitcher is the maid who "forgets" that there is no sugar, or butter, or coffee just at the moment when dinner is ready to be served. There is nothing more exasperating than this phase of domestic an-A Boston cooking school once had a wooden "marketing card" for the kitchen wall, which could be used to advantage by housekeepers, and could be copied in home-made form. It consisted of a light wood frame, provided with slips of dark wood, upon which were marked the names of the different housekeeping stores—sugar, tea, soap, slots and could be moved into place against the light background. When any particular supply gave out the corresponding slip was brought in view upon the card, and when the grocery order was given nothing necessary could be forgotten. This plan will work to perfection with the most "difficult" o help, who will refuse to understand al other modes of exercising their memories.—Boston Globe.

Roots For Fowls. The poultry man who has secured a supply of small potatoes and other roots, usually obtainable at a small cost in the orchards, is a wise provider. The Rocky Mountain Husbandman says: If poultry breeders and fanciers would believe how valuable and succulent a provision for chicken stock rutabages, bests, potatoes and carrots are when cooked, either boiled or steamed, and mixed with the rye and cornmeal given the birds, this excellent style of root feeding would be far more generally practiced and to the certain improvement of the ordinary condition of the birds. We cannot enter into a scientific analysis of vegetable food, nor is this necessary. But all experience with the above mentioned roots. as we recommend their use, has proved highly satisfactory whenever and wherever the experiment has been tried with

A Cattle Feed Rotation.

We rotate with rye for spring feeding and corn for fall feeding. We usually begin to use the corn in August, and as soon as we clear a strip we sow rye directly on the stubble and harrow it in with a single Planet cultivator, following with a heavy but well spread coat of coarse horse manure, and so continue till the whole plot is cleaned and seeded. In the spring when the rye is fed off (usually by the 1st of June), we manure, plow and thoroughly cultivate the ground and drill the corn with a grain drill 32 inches apart, but pretty thick in the rows. This never fails to make a heavy growth, and though thick makes quite good sized nubbins, often 6 or 8 Rye scems to do best on surface culti vated soil. The heaviest crop we ever raised (35 bushels per acre on five acres). was on a pretty rough hillside of corn stubble, cuitivated two ways with a two horse, spring tooth, wheel harrow and drilled in with commercial fertilizers. In the spring the ground was rolled smooth and gave us no trouble at cutting .- W. T. S., Pa., in Rural New

FORTY years ago, when such four-mile race horses as Boston, Fashion, Eclipse and Henry were famous, the principa coarse food given them was the blades of eern, known as bundled corn fodder, prepared by stripping the leaves from the stalks, making them into small bundles, and allowing them to cure by hanging the bundles from the stalls. The corn fodder was considered better and cleaner than hay, being considered safeguard against heaves. If it was so valuable then, it should possess equal merit now, and especially as the racers of former days frequently raced four-

A STACK of straw may be of but little value, owing to its bulk, which makes the transportation of such material to market too costly, but when it is cut up fine, and fed with grain, it will be more than doubled in value. It may not equal other foods, but it is worth some thing, and should be utilized to the best advantage. If applied to bedding purposes it will be of greater value when cut, as the refuse can then be more con veniently used as an absorbent in the

THERE is plenty of work on the farms even when enforced idleness exists in the cities. Why is the farmer at a loss to procure kelp while hundreds are seeking employment? It is perhaps because farm work never ends. There are no regular hours. The farm hand rises early and works late. In his favor, however, is the fact that he has but few expenses, board and lodging being provided, his wages being nearly clear. His work is often every day in the week, and his opportunities for advancement or education limited, though there are exceptions in many cases. THE small potatoes are worth nearly as much per bushel, in food value, on the farm, as the larger ones. They may not be salebie, but the pigs will care nothing for the size, and will accept them as readily as they will the best. WHEN the leaves are allowed to go to waste there is but little actual loss in that manner, but it means a loss of valuable manure that might have been saved by using the leaves as an absorbent. Do not lose sight of the fact that all animals on the farm are kept for profit. It should not be satisfactory to keep an animal through the winter at a standstill, looking to the spring and summer for the increase. The winter is the season when the greatest gain should be made, as the labor can then be more conveniently bestowed to the care and leading of stock. DANGER, when pimples, blotches and eruptions appear on the skin, no matter how slight. It warns you that your shood fan't the blood by taking Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It rouses every organ into natural action, purifies and enriches the blood and through it cleanes and invigorates the whole system. It attacks all scrotulous, skin and scaip diseases in the right way—by purifying the blood.

The diseases that it cures come from a torpid liver, or from impure blood. For everything of this nature, it is the only guaranteed remedy.
